Claims 1, 2, 4, 5, 10-13 and 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Atsumi et al(JP 200217509 Ref. N) for the reasons given in the Office Action mailed 12/04/02, Paper No. 6.

Claims 3, 6-9, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Atsumi et al in view of Takahashi (6,352,727) for the reasons given in the Office action mailed December 4, 2002, Paper No. 6.

Applicants' remarks filed June 6, 2003, Paper No. 7 have been fully and carefully considered but are not found to be convincing. Contrary to what is apparently being urged, the reference does not have to read word-for-word the same as the claim for anticipation. It is urged that Atsumi does not specifically mention that his composition is an antifungal agent; only that it is an antibacterial agent. Whether the composition is an antifungal agent or not is a property or capability of that composition. Atsumi discloses a composition that is to be added to produce and contains both of applicants constituents-chitosan and hinokitiol. Applicant's specification does not disclose that the antibacterial and antifungal properties only occur in certain narrow limits. In fact, just the opposite appears to be true. Thus, in the absence of any proven criticality to the contrary, it appears that providing chitosan and hinokitiol in an anti-microbial amount also inherently has at least some degree of antifugal activity. Note that the claims are silent as to any degree of antibacterial or anti-fungal activity, and thus are readable on the most minimal degree of activity. It is noted that the amendment urges that the synergistically effective amount is a "critical" element, but, as noted above, this 'critical" amount is not disclosed, let alone claimed. On page 3 of the amendment, it is apparently urged that the amounts of the chitosan and essential Application/Control Number: 09/912,448 oil in the invention are different from Atsumi. It is not clear what is the source for the ranges argued. In fact, the only disclosed range in applicants' specification appears to occur on page 9, wherein it is stated that "advantageously" the essential oils and/or chitosan salts can be used in amounts ranging from about 3000 ppm to about 10 ppm based on the total weight of the food product. Atsumi discloses the weight percent based on the carrier, not on the product so that the amount of hinokitiol and chitosan based on the total weight of the food product would be smaller than those numbers quoted by applicants.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
